OUR NATURAL WEALTH

The Spallumcheen and Okanagan District Described.

Enormous Wheat Yield--Fruit Growing--Villages, &c.

Your correspondent waited until the threshing was pretty far advanced before sending an account of the progress and prospects of the district. I have only been able to get some of the threshing returns, but they are sufficient to show that was very large, the oat crop, as a rule, was light; the hay crop was good and saved in excellent condition, the potatoes mostly all dug, large in yield, excellent in quality, the root crops (no large acreage) very good, and onions excellent. There are three steam threshers in the district, besides several horse powers. I will give you some of the largest yields of wheat in Spallumcheen; I believe the yield was equally as good in Priest Valley, Coldstream and Okanagon, but I have not got a return from there. Makin & Lewis had over 200 tons or 6,666 bushels of wheat; Graham, 120 tons, some of his yielded over 45 bushels to the acre; Clinton had 120 tons of wheat from 80 acres, about 50 bushels to the acre. Schubert's ninety tons averaging over 40 bushels to the acre. Swanson has about 160 tons. Young's wheat was the heaviest in the valley, averaging over 50 bushels to the acre. Wichen threshed about 7,000 bushels; Lumly & Bennett 13,000 bushels. A large day's threshing was done on this place. A forty-acre field yielded fifty-one tons or 1698 bushels, and was threshed in one day, setting the machine and cleaning up twice. Messrs. Fortune & Harland threshed 200 tons. The yield per acre of some was very heavy. Messrs. O'Keefe and Greenhow have not yet threshed, but it is estimated they will have about 600 tons. I have only mentioned some, but enough to show what a large yield there is this year. There are about 3500 tons of wheat for sale, and a great deal of last year's wheat is still unground, so the new mills will be kept pretty busy. The unfortunate part of the business is that the river is so low that it is to get the flour to the C. P. R. for shipment. This country has made wonderful strides during the past two years, and the people seem to have faith in the early construction of the S. & O. Railway. Most of the farmers are busy plowing and there will be quite a quantity of fall wheat sown. I hear that Messrs. Fortune & Harland will have 200 acres of fall wheat sown. This is a new departure. As a rule very little fall wheat is grown. Mr. Fortune is the pioneer in this country, and has seen many changes since the time when he ground his wheat in a coffee mill to the present, when, from the window of his hospitable house can be seen, looming up over the trees, the fine buildings of the Columbia Milling Co. A very large number of fruit trees were planted out last spring, and are thriving wonderfully. A large quantity have been sold for delivery this fall by the Jewell Nursery Co., of Lake City, Minn. There are certain portions of the district well adapted for and I have no doubt that they will in future be extensively cultivated, as there is a demand for hundreds of tons east. Several waggon loads have been shipped from here this summer, a great portion of them grown by Okanagon Indians. I noticed some time ago a very good description of the Columbia Mills in your paper, but it ought to be seen running to be appreciated. The machinery runs very smoothly, and the buildings are of such a substantial character that there is scarcely any vibration. Although filled with the most complicated looking machinery there is no dust, and one man, by handling a screw here and a gauge there, seems to be able to regulate the whole. There is not the least doubt that the company have a bonanza, and that Mr. Lawes will, as he deserves, make a great success of it. He has the best wheat in the world to work on, and, I think, will turn out the best flour; and if the S. & O. Railway be constructed it is difficult to estimate to what extent he can enlarge his business.

THE SITE OF THE MILL

is now called Enderby; a post office is established and quite a bustling little place is springing up. Mr. O. Harvey, successor to Keefer Bros., is carrying on quite an extensive business, and has lately built a large warehouse for agricultural machinery. Lansdowne, six miles from Enderby, is growing, and several very nice residences are in course of construction. The old established business houses and the Lansdowne Hotel, G. Wallace proprietor, seem to be doing well. Vernon, situated at the head of Priests Valley, near the terminus of the S. & O. Railway, is one of the most prettily situated villages in the country, being located on a large flat with park like timbers and scattered coppices, two nice streams of water flowing through it and rolling bunch grass hills springing up from the valley. Lone Lake, (one of the loveliest lakes, deep clear water intensely blue, abounding in trout), is fifteen miles long; the head of it not more than a mile and a-half from Vernon. Okanagan Lake, within three miles is eighty miles long. There are two good hotels and several business houses all doing well.

THROUGHOUT THE DISTRICT

the geese are pretty numerous on the small lakes and in the stubble. I can testify to their prime condition with the adjunct of sage and onions. Prairie chickens are somewhat scarce; other grouse numerous; deer, cariboo and bear very plentiful. Several black bear have been shot, and and an Indian was lately killed by a grizzly. Coyotes are numerous, and doing great damage among the sheep and pigs. In conclusion, I would say that it is difficult to estimate the value of this country when opened up by the S. & O. R. As a wheat and fruit country I believe it is perfection. I am quite satisfied that in no part of the world can such crops of wheat be raised or such prolific soil be found.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

Its Trade and Commerce--Mineral Resources--Gold Discoveries.

The Hon. John Forrest, Minister of Public Works for Western Australia, and wife are guests at the Driard. They leave by way of San Francisco in a few days. From Mr. Forrest it is learned that he is on his way back from the Colonial conference, which gathering he believes will be productive of much good by making the leading men of the various parts of the Colonial empire acquainted with each other and with the resources of each colony. He states that though almost as old as any of the other Australian countries, West Australia had not progressed as fast as the others. This he believed was due partially to the fact that the land was not considered so fertile, and because the discoveries of gold further to the eastward attracted capital and immigration thither. The population of the colony is now about forty thousand and responsible government has not yet been obtained.

Agriculture and sheep raising are the chief industries of the colony. Wool is the chief article of export. The government lease large tracts of country to wool growers, and receive considerable revenue from that source, lead ore is also exported, and the hard woods of the forests are also shipped to some extent. The imports last year were £659,391 and exports £446,692. The exports to Great Britain were valued at £276,779 and the imports from that country £275,440. The wool exports amounted to £233,345. The colony is rich in universal resources, particularly copper and lead, while coal is found in small quantities, and gold was discovered in 1886. The area of Western Australia is immense. The colony is 1,280 miles from north to south and 600 miles from east to west, the total area being nearly a million square miles, or one third of the area of the whole United States. The settlements are scattered. Perth, the capital, has about 7,000 population, and Freemantle about 4,000. The colony lately adopted a system of granting land subsides to companies engaged in building railways, and they have undertaken to promote emigration. So we, as a government, said he, are not giving any aid to immigration just now. In 1885, the area under cultivation was 78,000 acres, and up to that time about two millions of acres had been sold to settlers. The amount of live stock is very large, owing to the excellent pasturage and we have no winter. The colony has nearly 100 miles of railway in operation and probably as much more under construction. The railway and telegraph lines are owned and operated by the government. There are about 2,500 miles of telegraph line within the colony connecting the scattered settlements. The public debt is about $6,000,000, not a very large amount; upon which 4½ per cent. interest is paid. Nearly the whole of this debt has been incurred in the construction of railways and telegraph lines. In comparing the debt of the Australian colonies with that of Canada it must be borne in mind that this debt represents expenditures upon revenue producing properties which are owned by the government, whereas Canada has spent $100,000,000 or so upon railways which belong to private parties. The administration of the colony is vested in a governor, at present, Sir Frederick Broome and a legislative council of eight appointed and sixteen elected members, the latter returned by the votes of all male inhabitants assessed in a rental of ten pounds. The governor's salary is $15,000. The government is composed of a colonial secretary, attorney general, commissioner of public lands, and surveyor general, and a director of public works. There is a small native population, but the great mass of the people are of British origin. In 1881 the adherents of the Church of England numbered 16,263, the Roman Catholics 8,413, Methodists 2,084, Presbyterians 1,094, Independents 1,262, and other denominations about 500. The hon. gentleman is acquainted with Mr. Sandford Fleming and takes a deep interest in the completion of a telegraph cable from this province to Japan, China and Australia, which he believes will be an accomplished fact ere many years pass over us.

Order of Foresters.

At the annual meeting of Columbia District Ancient Order of Foresters, held at Forester's Hall, the following delegates were present: W G Cameron and H Waller from Court Vancouver, Victoria; R J Wenborn and W M Hilbert from Court Nanaimo, Foresters' Home, Nanaimo; H Smith and E J Salmon from Court Northern Light, Victoria; and W H Kelly and C R Monck from Court Lord Dufferin, New Westminster. The following officers were elected and appointed: R J Wenborn, D C R; W H Kelly, D S C R; H Smith, D T; J R McKenzie, D S; trustees, Messrs E J Salmon, W G Cameron and W M Hilbert; auditors, S Wilson and H L Salmon; arbitrators, M Manson, J Randall, Jr, C R Monck, H Waller and A Holmes. The endowment fund of the order has increased its benefits from $1,000 to $2,000. This being purely on the insurance principle there are no assessments, and each member knows on joining what he has to pay per year.

The order was reported to be in a very flourishing condition. Several new courts, it is expected, will be established within the jurisdiction this year.

SENATOR MACDONALD AND THE UNION CLUB.

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—I notice in your issue of yesterday, with reference to the opinions and utterances of Senator Macdonald and the Hon. J. H. Turner, that you say that Senator Macdonald describes himself with his own pen, and officially, as a member of the Union Club of Victoria.

Your leader has been very much discussed and remarked upon, and I have heard it very greatly questioned if Senator Macdonald has not made an eccentric mistake in describing himself as a member of the Union.

Of course he may be a member, but why should so many people doubt it, and why should so many shake their heads when they read it? I, like others, am puzzled. So perhaps some of your readers or the Senator himself will explain the apparent mystery. Yours,

A Loyal Subject.

TO-DAY'S DISPATCHES.

A U. S. Opinion on the Sealing Question--French Scandal.

A Disgraceful Riot in Toronto --Murdered and Burned.

VERDICT OF MURDER.

Dublin, Oct. 12—The jury in the Mitchellstown inquest rendered a verdict of willful murder against Inspector Browning, Sergeants Kirwin, Ryder and Brennan, and Constables Gavin and Doran. After the verdict the coroner issued warrants for the arrest of the head constable Browning and the other policemen found guilty.

An inquiry into the circumstance of the killing of Jno. Kinsella near Arklow, a fortnight ago, resulted in a verdict of murder against Captain Hamilton and the constables under his charge, and the bailiffs they were escorting.

A FRENCH ARMY SCANDAL.

Paris, Oct. 12.—In connection with the army office scandal, the most recent development is the discovery at General Caffarel's house of plans to mobilize the 17th corps. The plan is similar to that published by Figaro. A memorandum of the aims received for decorations has been received at Comte de Anman's house. The count has gone to Brussels or Berlin to avoid arrest. In London there is an opinion that Mr. Wilson is connected with the scandal, which may lead to Grevy's resignation. A change in the presidency would affect European peace.

Another arrest was made last night, arising out of the Caffarel scandal, of a lady commonly known as Marquise Costa de Beauregard, whose revelations implicate Senator General Count Dandlau. Nothing has been seen of the latter since Monday night, and it is believed he has suicided. One report states he killed himself at his chateau at Lancort. In an interview to-day Boulanger thus expressed himself about General Caffarel: "He has been forced to acknowledge his crime. He should then be set free on condition that he put a revolver in his mouth and blow his brains out."

Paris, Oct. 13.—The excitement concerning the Caffarel scandal continues unabated. The public feels that the affair is only at a beginning. Forty police agents are busy searching Paris and scouring the country trying to find Gen. D'Andlau. Not even the faintest trace of him has yet been detected. Crowds at the bourse collect and talk themselves into a firm belief that Wilson, President Grevy's son-in-law, and Boulanger are implicated deeply. In Gen. D'Andlau's apartments the police have found some registers containing incriminating entries. Rochefort thinks the affair was originally made up by members of the ministry to injure Boulanger. He does not believe that D'Andlau has suicided, as he is too old. "This scandal," says Rochefort, "will cause the fall of the ministry. It won't upset M. Grevy. He will simply repudiate the people who have compromised themselves. As for Madame Limousin, she will get off with a fortnight's imprisonment, if she goes to prison at all, which I doubt. But whoever else escapes, the ministry wont."

THE GERMAN-ITALIAN ALLIANCE.

London, Oct. 12.—It did not need a statesman of Prince Bismarck's capacity to appreciate the advantages of an alliance between Germany and Italy, and the latter country, out of gratitude for past benefits and expectation of future support in possible difficulties, has every reason to cling closely to her Teutonic neighbor. The interview of the German chancellor and Signor Crispi, and subsequent renewal of the Triple alliance, are referred to by the highest authority as no guarantee of peace, but are generally considered as a menace to France, and it is certain the latter nation looks upon it as such. Italy can thank Germany for the restoration of Rome and Venice, while she cannot forget that for more than a score of years her national capital was kept from her by a French garrison. The common people of Italy have a fear of the French and an aversion to them which they do not hesitate to manifest whenever they have a good opportunity. The reinforcement of garrisons in the south of France is emphatic evidence of what Gallic statesmen think of the Freiderich conference and its results, and what confidence they place in the statement that the alliance was conceived and consummated in the interests of peace. Twelve battalions of chasseurs and two regiments of mountain artillery, as recently demanded of the French chamber by the Minister of War to insure the defense of the Alps, further demonstrates that officially the opinion of a possible condition of affairs on the frontier. Nor has Italy been idle on her side of the border. The utmost care has been taken to prevent any inspection of the works that are to be erected near the French line, and the visible ones at Clevere, their nearest point to Briancon, the French Alpine stronghold and the key to the passes of Mount Cenis and St. Bernard and the Simplon, do not exercise the French minds so much as the excavations erected night and day under the road on the Italian side of the descent of Mount Genievive.

AMERICAN NEWS.

AGAIN A WINNER.

Jerome Park, Oct. 13.—Haggin's Firenzi won again to-day, capturing the third race of one and three-quarter miles in 3.09¾.

THE READY REVOLVER.

Grants, New Mexico, Oct. 13.—Thos. Wright, ranch owner in Cebollete valley, a short distance southwest from here, had a quarrel with a Mexican over a yearling yesterday. The latter drew a revolver with which he shot and killed Wright. Another American present then killed the Mexican and escaped. Wright has several brothers. A war of extermination will soon begin.

THE STORM-SWEPT CITIES.

Nogales, Ariz., Oct. 13.—It is said that the shore of the Bay at Guaymas is crowded by people awaiting tidings from the swept away cities and schooners on the gulf. The storm and tidal wave are the most severe that ever have been known. Many of those who have wealth are rushing to the scene of disaster for the purpose of lending all the aid in their power to assist the unfortunates.

THE EMBRACERS.

San Francisco, Oct. 13.—The trial of Robert P. Morrow, charged with embracery, was commenced to-day. The work of securing a jury is now going on. James McLord, indicted with Morrow for the same crime, arrived from the east to day. He refuses to talk.

OWENS OWNS UP.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—John B. Owens, express manager of the Pacific Express Co. at Texarkana, who was arrested on a charge of appropriating $26,000 of the company's money last week, has made a confession. Owens buried the money behind a woodshed on the outskirts of St. Louis on Saturday afternoon. He led a detective to the place yesterday and the money was recovered.

MURDERED AND BURNED.

Los Angelos, Cal. Oct. 13.—It became known to-day that the charred remains found in the burned barn at Compton on the 7th inst., were those of Dr. E. C. Harlan, a most popular dentist of former days. The wife of the doctor says that her husband had gone to Compton with a large sum of money. The general belief is that the dentist was murdered and robbed and his body removed to the barn and the place fired to destroy all traces of the crime.

BELIEVED TO BE LOST.

San Francisco, Oct. 13.—George Tyler, youngest son of G. W. Tyler, a well known attorney, started on a pleasure trip with his wife and child on Sunday last and has not yet been heard from. The little party left San Pedro in a small sail boat for Santa Catalina island. Serious misgivings are now entertained for their safety.

BANKERS IN CONVENTION.

Pittsburg, Oct. 13.—A large number of additional delegates attended to-day's session of the American Bankers Association. Many resolutions, chiefly aiming at more federal and state enactments favorable to bankers, were introduced, but without action and were referred to the executive council of the association. The nominating committee reported a list of proposed officers for ensuing year. The ticket was headed by the name of Logan C. Murray, of New York, for president. Papers on various subjects were read.

A GREAT SHAM FIGHT.

Newport, R. I., Oct. 13.—To-day will witness one of the most exciting sham fights ever witnessed in the country, to determine the best means of defending this most important naval station, as well as to instruct the young officers in the mysteries of warfare. The North Atlantic squadron will try to capture this city, which will be held by troops from Fort Adams. Over one thousand blue-jackets and soldiers will participate. The attack begins at 12:45 p. m. When under a heavy fire from the war ships, sailors and marines will make a descent upon Goat Island, and try to capture it, which if successful will be made the centre of operations and be hurriedly fortified for the heavy guns to be trained on the city. A large number of visitors are arriving to witness the affair. Admiral Luce will command the naval force in person.

CANADIAN NEWS.

SOVEREIGNTY OF BEHRING SEA.

Ottawa, Oct. 13.—The assertion that the United States upholds the idea of the three-mile limit in the Atlantic Ocean, and opposes the same idea in the Pacific, is disposed of by Delaney as follows: "Concerning the doctrine of International law establishing what is known as the marine league belt, which extends the jurisdiction of the nation into the adjacent seas for a distance of one marine league, or three miles, from it shores, and following all indentations and sinuosities of its coast, there is at this date no room for discussion. It must be accepted as the settled law of nations. It is sustained by the highest authority, law writers and jurists. It has been sanctioned by the United States since the foundation of the government. Well grounded as it is, this doctrine of the law of nations is no more firmly established as a part of the International Code than that other principle which gives to the nation supremacy, jurisdiction and dominion over its own inland waters, gulfs, bays and seas." Delaney then makes numerous references to prove that Russia always asserted that Behring Sea was an inland water and that the United States has always maintained the same position since it acquired a title. Enough has been said to disclose a basis of Russia's right to jurisdiction over Behring Sea under law of nations—namely: Original possession of the Asiatic coast, followed by discovery and possession of the Aleutian chain and the shores of Alaska north, not only to Behring Strait, but to Point Barrow and the frozen ocean, thus inclosing within its territory as within the embrace of a mighty giant, the islands and waters of Behring Sea, and with this assumption the exercise of dominion over land and sea."

AN ORANGE MOB.

Toronto, Oct. 13.—Cardinal Taschereau was banqueted last night by prominent Roman Catholics. An Orange band from the suburbs of the city, accompanied by large crowds of bloodthirsty roughs, went to the hotel where the banquet was being held and by playing tunes and hurling filthy and insulting epithets they managed to provoke a fight. The fight soon grew into a riot and as several thousand engaged in it, at one time serious results were anticipated. Stones were thrown by the rioters and a number were injured. Finally the police were sent for, it being feared that the angry crowd would stone and do violence to those at the banquet. The police, after an exciting fight with the mob, managed to disperse it. A number of arrests were made. In every instance but one the prisoners were rescued by friends after being arrested.

THE U. S. BRIEF.

Ottawa, Oct. 13.—The government here is in receipt of advices from Sitka which contain a brief, understood to have been prepared in Washington, and filed in the court at Sitka by A. K. Delaney, as counsel for the United States, in the latter's claim of exclusive dominion over Behring Sea, as brought out in the existing seal fisheries dispute. Delaney takes the position that Behring Sea is not a portion of the open or high sea, but is an inland water cut off from the ocean, and essentially land-locked

The meeting of Bismarck and the prime minister of Italy would seem to indicate an alliance between the two great states of Central Europe. This may serve to keep the peace. At all events France and Russia will hesitate before they make war upon the 150,000,000 of people represented at this conference.

The Manitoba government has decided to appoint Messrs. Norquay and Hamilton as delegates to the interprovincial conference. The choice made is a wise one, and the action itself commendable. This is one of the best evidences of its earnestness in the matter of provincial autonomy that the government has yet given.

Mr. Daniel Freeman, of Los Angeles, who has given the University of Southern California, $600,000 for the establishment of a school of applied science, is a native of the City of Hamilton, Ontario, where he studied law for a time in the legal office of Messrs. A fire in the North Ohio insane asylum, Cleveland, occupied by 350 inmates, created great consternation. The poor, unreasoning creatures shrieked with fear and scrambled for the doors, but became bewildered in the smoke and were worse than helpless. Many were suffocated or trampled to death. Two of the dead are unrecognizable.

The English Court officials appear to have blundered disgracefully in the reception of guests during the Jubilee festivities. Not only were the host of petty German Princelets given precedence over the Indian Princes, but even the Queen of Hawaii took superior rank. The consequence is that several of the Indian Princes—to please whom on such an occasion extraordinary efforts should have been made—were deeply offended, and have carried a lasting grievance home to India.

The most disastrous storms ever known on the southern coast of Mexico occurred on the 7th, and 8th insts. The city of Quilata, a town of more than eight thousand people, is totally destroyed, with terrible loss of life. Many women, children and men, struggled in stormy torrents, bearing them to destruction, and crying for help which was not at hand. The supposition is that a number of wrecks occurred in the gulf, but the facts cannot be ascertained. The entire coffee and orange crop in Sinatia is destroyed.

For the past few days, says the Winnipeg Sun, there has been considerable street talk about a coalition in local politics. Many politicians feel that at the present juncture it would be most fitting to unite and press for the just claims of the province to the fullest extent. If Mr. Norquay were provided for the oracle would not be difficult to work, as most politicians feel that he should be retired with a competency or situation of some kind. The hints one hears on the streets are that Messrs. Greenway, Luxton and Martin should be taken from the opposition ranks, and that Messrs. Norquay and LaRiviere should retire. A fair redistribution would be given, and in any subsequent reconstruction of the cabinet the French would be given fair representation. It is not known that any steps have been taken in the matter; but the talk runs in that line.

BELL VS. TUPPER.

When the case of Mrs. BELL against SIR CHARLES TUPPER was called at the Ottawa Assize Court on the 5th inst., SIR CHARLES lawyers asked to have the case postponed in consequence of the defendant's absence. The case was accordingly put off until the next court, the defendant paying the costs of the day. The action is brought to secure payment for services rendered as a private detective on the Intercolonial railway in 1880 and 1881. Mrs BELL claiming that she was engaged for the work by Sir CHARLES, who was then Minister of Railways.

SETTLED AT LAST.

The announcement is now made that as a result of the Hon. JOHN ROBSON's mission to Ottawa an arrangement has been arrived at whereby a joint title is to be issued by the Dominion and Provincial Governments to the settlers in the Chilliwhack district who have located upon what is known as the lands claimed under the Sumas Dyking Act. These lands embrace an area of about 82,000 acres, and the tract is considered as amongst the best and most valuable in the province, the only drawback being that at times they are liable to overflow, by the great rise in the Fraser, the melting of the snow in the interior causing that stream to overleap its banks without regard to any boundaries or limits that may be placed upon it, which overflow is augmented by the streams from the foot hills and the coast range pouring down in their mad career to join the mighty present stream, equally regardless of consequences to settlers or their effects. The proposal to issue joint titles emanated from Mr. BURGESS, deputy to the Interior Minister, during his visit to this city last June. At that period the provincial government was most obdurate, repudiating the claim of the Dominion Government to any control of the lands in question. The settlers, however, favored the Ottawa authorities, and are now to be congratulated on compelling the James Bay government to join hands with the Dominion and settle a subject which more than any thing else has retarded the progress of the finest settlement in the province. If the statement is correct—and we hope it is—progress of an astonishing nature will be the order of the day in Chilliwhack and Sumas, for settlers no longer will be in an uncertain state of mind as to the ultimate outcome of the dispute. Transfers will now take place. New settlers will pour in and the valley become, in a short time, a home for hundreds of happy, prosperous and contented settlers. The next grievance to be redressed by the authorities is the Matsqui difficulty. Here are to be found thousands of acres of land than which none better the sun of any clime to-day shines upon. Here likewise a fine, productive section is going to wreck and ruin. The dyking difficulty prevents settlement. Once the matter is adjusted, this also will become a progressive section. The land is there; all that is now wanted is settlers and men to tickle the virgin soil and make it yield of its richness and fatness. When all this is accomplished the Fraser River Valley will yield the palm to no other portion of this wide Dominion for productiveness or the capabilities of its soil.

FALLING IN THE REAR.

Mr. JOHN BRIGHT writes a letter denying the statement that he could not support the Government's Irish policy, because he had declared that force was no remedy for the troubles of that country. His latest letter says:

"The disunionists, whether under Mr. Gladstone in England or Mr. Parnell in Ireland, are not careful as to the truth of their statements. Force is no remedy for just disputes, but it is a remedy—and often the only remedy—for disorder and violence, against which our laws proved powerless. I supported Gladstone's acts of 1881 and 1882 for the suppression of the Land League and disorder in Ireland, and I now support the Government in its efforts to suppress the National League, which is the Land League under another name. My sympathy for Ireland was not born of a faction in a struggle for place and pay. It was as strong as it is now thirty years ago, before Gladstone, Harcourt and Morley and their noisy followers had a word to say in favor of the Irish tenantry, or the sufferings of any portion of the people. Recent events have greatly strengthened my sympathy.

We have delivered the tenants from all that was unjust or oppressive in the laws affecting the tenure of land. It is needful to free them from the wicked conspiracy which is leading them to dishonesty and crime. The leaders of the conspiracy teach the tenant that his true interest is to plunder his landlord and to cherish a bitter hatred for England. Industry, honesty and regard for the law are despised and condemned. It is this conspiracy with which the bulk of the Liberals are asked to ally themselves. The leaders of the Liberal party, forgetting whatever is honorable in its past history, as followers march in the path which will lead only to party disgrace and national disaster. I would save the Liberal party with which I have been much longer associated and for which I have worked more than any of the present acting leaders, from the humiliation with which it is menaced. I would, with my sympathy for Ireland, save the population from the future conduct of men who are answerable for much of the present suffering and all the disorder with which the country is now afflicted and disgraced.

Mr. BRIGHT's declaration of sympathy for Ireland does not in the least change the aspect of affairs or the situation on the vexed question. A contemporary observes that Mr. JOHN BRIGHT, in his time, has been a useful man. At the solicitation of and in conjunction with RICHARD CORDEN, the great corn law agitator, he did some effective work in delivering the struggling masses of Great Britain and Ireland from oppressive taxes on wheat, breadstuffs and other necessary commodities. For doing this and other beneficial acts he seems now to think that what he has not accomplished is not worth doing. In his declining years, unlike his great contemporary and former chieftain — Mr. GLADSTONE — Mr. BRIGHT is content to rest and be thankful. He tells us that the Irish tenants have been delivered from oppressive laws, and all that was unjust as affecting the tenure of land, and that it is bad and indiscreet men who are now teaching the Irish to plunder their landlords. This is a statement which illustrates Mr. BRIGHT's narrow conception of the question, and shows that he has failed to fully appreciate the actual condition of affairs in that unhappy country.

The tenants are not seeking a change in the laws to enable them to plunder landlords, but a change in the laws to prevent landlords from plundering tenants. If every man is born free, and possessed of a moral right to the product of his own labor, why should tenants be forced to hand over the first fruits of their labor to support landlords in idleness? It is true that OLIVER CROMWELL went into Ireland, many years ago, with an army behind him, and after killing a great many of the inhabitants, he ordered the rest to "go to h—— or Connaught." It is true that he then divided the land among his followers, and that their descendants have ever since collected rent from the natives for the use of the land. But CROMWELL never owned the land. It belonged, not to him, but to the people of Ireland. As JEFFERSON put it, in speaking of the United States, the land belongs in usufruct to the living. Therefore the landlords of Ireland have taken from the workers in Ireland many millions of dollars' worth of wealth to which the landlords were not entitled. The workers do not demand that what has been taken unjustly should be restored. They simply demand that the robbery should cease; that henceforth the truth that the land belongs to the people should be recognized, and that the rental of the land (the measure of its value) should be used for the good of the people whose labor produces the value, and not be stolen away by landlords who produce nothing.

Mr. BRIGHT may be forgiven for not having kept up with the spirit of the age. He is an old man, and he grew to manhood surrounded by the fraudulent system of landlordism, never seemingly impressed with a sense of its injustice. He has more respect for an old musty parchment than for the natural rights of his fellow-countrymen. Yet Mr. BRIGHT has seen the so-called rights of landlords disputed. He has seen Parliament enact laws to prevent landlords from taking all the rent they demanded. It is but a step to declare that they have no right to land rent at all, and that step wiser men than Mr. BRIGHT are determined to take. If Mr. BRIGHT wanted to make the unjust system of landlordism permanent he should have opposed the extension of the franchise. Working people, who have votes, he should have known, will not forever consent to labor hard and live poorly to support a privileged class in idleness and luxury. Scolding his old political associates and boasting of his old achievements as a Liberal leader will not stem the tide of reform.

CHEMAINUS NEWS.

A Pleasurable and Unpleasant Hunt ---Improvements---Saw Mill Trade, Etc.

Messrs. John Croft and Wm. Pell have just returned from their week's hunt, which was at once pleasurable and unpleasant; pleasurable since they report the slaying of a huge bear, five deer, and many grouse; the bear so large that they were not able to bear home even the skin as a memento of their feats; unpleasant because they were forty-eight hours without the means of quenching their thirst, although just afterwards it rained copiously.

Mr. Samuel Gray has been so unfortunate as to loose one of his best work horses.

Mr. Blayney is making great improvements on his farm.

Mr. Reynolds is putting up a neat fence on his place with the intention of setting out fruit trees. It will present, when done, a pretty appearance from the water.

Our associate, Mr. Gray, had the supplying of refreshments and dinner at the Maple Bay exhibition, and those who partook of the same felt well satisfied.

Farmers generally are busy getting up their root crops before the ground becomes too wet.

The saw mill is doing good business. Two barks have just entered to load lumber for foreign ports.

let that cold of yours run on. You think it is a light thing. But it may run into catarrh, Or into pneumonia, Or consumption.

Catarrh is disgusting. Pneumonia is dangerous. Consumption is death itself.

The breathing apparatus must be kept healthy and clear of all obstructions and offensive matter. Otherwise there is trouble ahead.

All the diseases of these parts, head, nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs, can be delightfully and entirely cured by the use of Boschee's German Syrup. CITY COUNCIL.

Another Report Wanted on Sewerage--Standard Time, &c., &c.

The regular weekly meeting was held at 8 o'clock last evening. Present: His Worship Mayor, Fell, Couns. Styles, Vigelius, Barnard, Braden, Higgins and Harris.

Minutes of previous meeting read and adopted.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Thornton Fell, on behalf of the Chinese residents, requesting permission to rebuild furnaces in the old cemetery.

Coun. Braden spoke against allowing the Chinese permission to build fires in cemeteries. A short time ago the grass was burned; also a number of fences, and the Chinese trampled over the graves of the respected dead of our own race.

The communication was referred to the Cemetery Committee and Fire Wardens.

From Capt. H. G. Lewis, for permission to remove a tree on Dallas Road. Referred to the Street Committee.

From David Williams, engineer at the electric light works, informing the Council that the furnace and boilers were in need of repairs; and also that the pumping of water to the higher levels would be discontinued whilst the repairs were being effected.

Coun. Barnard wished to know the cost of running the electric light machinery.

Coun. Styles replied that the expense connected with the electric light amounted to about $548 per month.

The communication was referred to the Electric Light Committee.

SEWERAGE.

Coun. Barnard moved the following resolution:

"That the Sewerage or Drainage Committee be empowered to confer with Mr. T. C. Keefer, C. M. G., and ascertain what his fee would be for an opinion upon the plans, specifications and estimates of cost proposed by Messrs. Pickering & Crompton for carrying out a sewerage system for the city and for any further information that may be elicited from Mr. Keefer on this important subject."

The mover said that a committee had been appointed to investigate the scheme submitted by Messrs. Pickering & Crompton. No report had been handed in and a number of ratepayers at a public meeting spoke unfavorably of the plans submitted by those gentlemen. Mr. Keefer was engaged in drawing up a report on the water works and might give an opinion on the sewerage scheme free of cost.

Coun. Vigelius said that the funds would not permit any further payments for reports. Mr. Keefer is engaged on one important work and the Council should receive one report before engaging that gentleman to report on the other scheme.

The resolution was carried.

STREET BY-LAW.

Coun. Higgins moved that a by-law to regulate the width of streets to be read a second time. Carried.

REPORTS.

From the Park Committee, recommending the construction of a band pavilion on Beacon Hill.

His Worship wished the postponement of the adoption of this report. The funds were very low and a statement showing the amount on hand would be submitted at the next meeting of the Council.

Coun. Styles moved, seconded by Coun. Barnard, that the report be adopted.

Coun. Braden moved in amendment, seconded by Coun. Vigelius, that the report lay over for one week. The amendment was carried.

From the Street Committee recommending that a six-foot sidewalk be constructed to Agricultural Hall, Beacon Hill, and that lumber be furnished Mr. Samuel Gray to construct a sidewalk on Hillside Avenue. Report adopted.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Coun. Braden, on behalf of Mr. Cartmel, applied for the sum of $40 due that gentleman for services rendered in connection with a report on the electric light machinery. Mr. Cartmel wished the corporation to hand over the whole amount to the trustees of the Jubilee Hospital.

Coun. Higgins moved, seconded by Coun. Braden, that the amount be paid and a vote of thanks tendered Mr. Cartmel for his valuable services.

Coun. Higgins moved, seconded by Coun. Vigelius for returns of fines, fees and forfeitures of court from 1st of January to 1st of October. Carried.

Coun. Braden moved, seconded by Coun. Higgins, that the water commissioner be instructed to give a return of the cost and other matters connected with his department. Carried.

Coun. Higgins moved, seconded by Coun. Vigelius, that a committee be appointed to consider and report upon the advisability of adopting the standard time for this city.

NOTICE OF MOTION HIGGINS.

Coun. Higgins gave notice of motion to repeal by-law 132 and to provide a bonus for the erection of a smelting and reduction works.

Council adjourned at 9:10 o'clock.

150-Mile House.

The measles are all over the valley, and Mrs. C. B. Eagle has died from the disease. The Williams Lake Mission school children are getting better. Mr. Hamilton's large family are nearly all down with them and the Indians are generally victims. There is no doubt but the disease will spread more and if proper care is not taken death will be rife in the Indian village.

The weather has been very cold; a snow storm occurred on the 7th and lay all day long.

The crops have been harvested and threshed, and have turned out much better than was expected. Eagle threshed 110,000 pounds of feed grain.

The First Sign

Of failing health, whether in the form of Night Sweats and Nervousness, or in a sense of General Weariness and Loss of Appetite, should suggest the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This preparation is most effective for giving tone and strength to the enfeebled system, promoting the digestion and assimilation of food, restoring the nervous forces to their normal condition, and for purifying, enriching, and vitalizing the blood.

Failing Health.

Ten years ago my health began to fail. I was troubled with a distressing Cough, Night Sweats, Weakness, and Nervousness. I tried various remedies prescribed by different physicians, but became so weak that I could not go up stairs without stopping to rest. My friends recommended me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which I did, and I am now as healthy and strong as ever.—MRS. E. L. Williams, Alexandria, Minn.

I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla in my family, for Scrofula, and know, if it is taken faithfully, that it will thoroughly eradicate this terrible disease. I have also prescribed it as a tonic, as well as an alterative, and must say that I honestly believe it to be the best blood medicine ever compounded.—W. F. Fowler, M. D., D. D. S., Greenville, Tenn.

Dyspepsia Cured.

It would be impossible for me to describe what I suffered from Indigestion and Headache up to the time I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was under the care of various physicians, and tried a great many kinds of medicines, but never obtained more than temporary relief. After taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for a short time, my headache disappeared, and my stomach performed its duties more perfectly. To-day my health is completely restored.—Mary Harley, Springfield, Mass.

I have been greatly benefited by the prompt use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It tones and invigorates the system, regulates the action of the digestive and assimilative organs, and vitalizes the blood. It is, without doubt, the most reliable blood purifier yet discovered.—H. D. Johnson, 383 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. ††

CHAPTER XXI.

AWAY! AWAY!

At the top of the rise we halted for a second to breathe our horses, and turning, glanced at the battle beneath us, which, illumined as it was by the fierce rays of the sinking sun staining the whole scene red, looked from where we were more like some wild titanic picture than an actual hand-to-hand combat.

"We win the day, Macumazahn," said old Umslopogaas, taking in the whole situation with a glance of his practiced eye. "Look, the Lady of the Night's forces give on every side; there is no stiffness left in them, they bend like hot iron, they are fighting with but half a heart. But alas! the battle will in a manner be drawn, for the darkness gathers and the regiments will not be able to follow and slay!"—and he shook his head sadly. "But," he added, "I do not think that they will fight again; we have fed them with too strong a meat. Ah! it is well to have lived! At least I have seen a fight worth seeing."

By this time we were on our way again, and as we went side by side I told him what our mission was, and how that, if it failed, all the lives that had been lost that day would have been lost in vain.

"Ah!" he said, "nigh on a hundred miles and no horses but these, and be there before dawn! Well—away! away! man can but try, Macumazahn; and maybap we shall be there in time to split that old 'witch finder's!' (Agon's) skull for him. Once he wanted to burn us, the old 'rain maker,' did he! And now he would set a snare for my mother (Nyleptha), "would he? Good! So sure as my name is the name of the Woodpecker, so surely, be my mother alive or dead, will I split him to the beard. Ay, by T'Chaka's head I swear it!" and he shook Inkosi-kaas as he galloped. By now the darkness was closing in, but fortunately there would be a moon later, and the road was good.

On we sped through the twilight; the two splendid horses we bestrode had got their wind by this, and were sweeping along with a wide, steady stride that neither failed nor varied for mile upon mile. Down the sides of slopes we galloped, across wide vales that stretched to the foot of far off hills. Nearer and nearer grew the blue hills; now we were traveling up their steeps, and now we were over and passing toward others that sprang up like visions in the far, faint distance beyond.

We spake not, but bent us forward on the necks of those two glorious horses, and listened to their deep, long drawn breaths as they filled their great lungs, and to the regular, unfaltering ring of their round hoofs. Grim and black, indeed, did old Umslopogaas look beside me, mounted upon the great white horse, like death in the revelation of St. John, as now and again lifting his fierce set face he gazed out along the road, and pointed with his ax toward some distant rise or house.

And so on, still on, without break or pause, for hour after hour.

At last I began to feel that even the splendid animal that I rode was beginning to give out. I looked at my watch; it was nearly midnight, and we were considerably more than half way. On the top of a rise was a little spring, which I remembered because I had slept by it a few nights before, and here I motioned to Umslopogaas to pull up, having determined to give the horses and ourselves ten minutes to breathe in. He did so, and we dismounted—that is to say, Umslopogaas did, and then helped me off, for what with fatigue, stiffness, and the pain of my wound, I could not do so for myself; and the gallant horses stood panting there, resting first one leg and then another, while the sweat fell drip, drip, from them, and the steam rose and hung in pale clouds in the still night air.

Leaving Umslopogaas to hold the horses, I hobbled to the spring and drank deep of its sweet waters. I had had nothing but a single mouthful of wine since midday, when the battle began, and I was parched up, though my fatigue was too great to allow me to feel hungry. Then, having laved my fevered head and hands, I returned, and the Zulu went and drank. Next we allowed the horses to take a couple of mouthfuls each—no more; and oh, what a struggle we had to get the poor beasts away from the water! There were yet two minutes, and I employed it in hobbling up and down to try and relieve my stiffness, and in inspecting the condition of the horses. My mare, gallant animal though she was, was evidently much distressed; she hung her head, and her eye looked sick and dull; but Daylight, Nyleptha's glorious horse—who, if he is served aright, should, like the steeds who saved the great Rameses in his need, feed for the rest of his days out of a golden manger—was still, comparatively speaking, perfectly fresh, notwithstanding that he had had by far the heavier weight to carry. He was "tucked up," indeed, and his legs were weary, but his eye was bright and clear, and he held his shapely head up and gazed out into the darkness round him in a way that seemed to say that, whoever failed, he was good for those five and forty miles that yet lay between us and Milosis. Then Umslopogaas helped me into the saddle and—vigorous old savage that he was!—vaulted into his own without touching a stirrup, and we were off once more, slowly at first, till the horses got into their stride, and then more swiftly. So we passed over another ten miles, and then came a long, weary rise of some six or seven miles, and three times did my poor black mare nearly come to the ground with me. But on the top she seemed to gather herself together, and rattled down the slope with long, convulsive strides, breathing in gasps. We did that three or four miles more swiftly than any since we had started on our mad ride, but I felt it to be a last effort, and I was right. Suddenly my poor horse took the bit between her teeth and bolted curiously along a stretch of level ground for some 300 or 400 yards, and then, with two or three jerky strides, pulled herself up and fell with a crash right on to her head, I rolling myself free as she did so. As I struggled on to my feet the brave beast raised her head and looked at me with piteous bloodshot eyes, and then her head dropped with a groan and she was dead. Her heart was broken.

Umslopogaas pulled up beside the carcass, and I looked at him in dismay. There were still more than twenty miles to do by dawn, and how were we to do it with one horse? It seemed hopeless, but I had forgotten the old Zulu's extraordinary running powers.

Without a single word he sprang from the saddle and began to hoist me into it.

"What wilt thou do?" I asked.

"Run," he answered, seizing my stirrup leather.

Then off we went again, almost as fast as before; and, oh, the relief it was to me to get that change of horses! Anybody who has ever ridden against time will know what it meant.

Daylight sped along at a long stretching hand gallop, giving the gaunt Zulu a lift at every stride. It was a wonderful thing to see old Umslopogaas run mile after mile, his lips slightly parted and his nostrils agape like the horse's. Every five miles or so we stopped for a few minutes to let him get his breath, and then flew on again.

"Canst thou go farther," I said at the third of these stoppages, "or shall I leave thee to follow me?"

He pointed with his ax to a dim mass before us. It was the Temple of the Sun, now not more than five miles away.

"I reach it or I die," he gasped.

Oh, that last five miles! The skin was rubbed from the inside of my legs, and every movement of my horse gave me anguish. Nor was that all. I was exhausted with toil, want of food and sleep, and also suffering very much from the blow I had received on my left side; it seemed as though a piece of bone or something was slowly piercing into my lung. Poor Daylight, too, was pretty nearly finished, and no wonder. But there was a smell of dawn in the air, and we might not stay; better that all three of us should die upon the road than that we should linger while there was life in us. The air was thick and heavy, as it sometimes is before the dawn breaks, and—another infallible sign in certain parts of Zu-Vendis that sunrise is at hand—hundreds of little spiders pendent on the end of long tough webs were floating about in it. These early rising creatures, or rather their webs, caught upon the horse's and our own forms by scores, and as we had neither the time nor the energy to brush them off, we rushed along covered with hundreds of long gray threads that streamed out a yard or more behind us—and a very strange appearance they must have given us.

And now before us are the huge brazen gates of the outer wall of the Frowning City, and a new and horrible doubt strikes me: What if they will not let us in!

"Open! open!" I shout imperiously, at the same time giving the royal password. "Open! open! a messenger, a messenger with tidings of the war!"

"What news?" cried the guard. "And who art thou that ridest so madly! and who is that whose tongue lolls out"—as!! it actually did—"and who runs by thee like a dog by a chariot?"

"It is the Lord Macumazahn, and with him is his dog, his black dog. Open! open! I bring tidings."

The great gates ran back on their rollers, and the drawbridge fell with a rattling crash, and we dashed on through the one and over the other.

"What news, my lord? what news?" cried the guard.

"Inceba rolls Sorais back, as the wind a cloud," I answered, and was gone.

One more effort, gallant horse, and yet more gallant man!

So, fall not now, Daylight; and hold thy life in thee for fifteen short minutes more, old Zulu war dog, and ye shall both live forever in the annals of the land.

On, clattering through the sleeping streets. We are passing the Flower Temple now—one mile more, only one little mile—hold on, keep your life in ye, see the houses run past of themselves. Up, good horse, up, there—but fifty yards now. Ah! you see your stables, and stagger on gallantly.

"Thank God, the palace at last!" and see, the first arrows of the dawn are striking on the temple's golden dome. But shall I get in here, or is the deed done and the way barred! Once more I give the password and shout "Open! open!"

No answer, and my heart grows very faint.

Again I call, and this time a single voice replies, and to my joy I recognize it as belonging to Kara, a fellow officer of Nyleptha's guards, a man I know to be as honest as the light—indeed, the same whom Nyleptha had sent to arrest Sorais on the day she fled to the temple.

"Is it thou, Kara?" I cry; "I am Macumazahn. Bid the guard let down the bridge and throw wide the gate. Quick, quick!"

Then followed a space that seemed to me endless; but at length the bridge fell and one half of the gate opened, and we got into the courtyard, where at last poor Daylight fell down beneath me, as I thought, dead. I struggled free, and leaning against a post looked around. Except Kara, there was nobody to be seen, and his look was wild, and his garments were all torn. He had opened the gate and let down the bridge alone, and was now getting them up and shut again (as, owing to a very ingenious arrangement of cranks and levers, one man could easily do, and indeed generally did do).

"Where are the guard?" I gasped, fearing his answer as I never feared anything before.

"I know not," he answered; "two hours ago, as I slept, was I seized and bound by the watch under me, and but now, this very moment, have I freed myself with my teeth. I fear, I greatly fear, that we are betrayed."

His words gave me fresh energy. Catching him by the arm, I staggered, followed by Umslopogaas, who reeled after us like a drunken man, through the courtyards, up the great hall, which was silent as the grave, towards the queen's sleeping place.

We reached the first antechamber—no guards; the second, still no guards. Oh, surely the thing was done! we were too late after all, too late! The silence and solitude of those great chambers was dreadful and weighed me down like an evil dream. On, right into Nyleptha's chamber we rushed and staggered, sick at heart, fearing the very worst; we saw there was a light in it, aye, and a figure bearing the light. Oh, thank God, it is the White Queen herself, the queen unharmed! There she stands in her night gear, roused by the clatter of our coming from her bed, the heaviness of sleep yet in her eyes and a red blush of fear and shame mantling her lovely breast and cheek.

"Who is it?" she cries. "What means this? Oh, Macumazahn, is it thou? Why lookest thou so wildly? Thou comest as one bearing evil tidings—and my lord—oh, tell me not my lord is dead—not dead!" she wailed, wringing her white hands.

"I left Inceba wounded, but leading the advance against Sorais last night at sundown; therefore let thy heart have rest. Sorais is beaten back all along her lines and thy arms prevail."

"I knew it," she cried in triumph. "I knew that he would win; and they called him an outlander and shook their wise heads when I gave him the command! Last night at sundown, sayest thou, and it is not yet dawn! Surely"—

"Throw a cloak around thee, Nyleptha," I broke in, "and give us wine to drink; ay, and call thy maidens quick if thou wouldst save thyself alive. Nay, stay not."

Thus adjured, she ran and called through the curtains towards some room beyond, and then hastily put on her sandals and a thick cloak, by which time a dozen or so of half dressed women were pouring into the room.

"Follow us and be silent," I said to them as they gazed with wondering eyes, clinging one to another. So we went into the first anteroom.

"Now," I said, "give us wine to drink and food, if ye have it, for we are near to death."

The room was used as a mess room for officers of the guards, and from a cupboard some flagons of wine and some cold flesh were brought forth, and Umslopogaas and I drank and felt life flow back into our veins as the good red wine went down.

"Hark to me, Nyleptha," I said, as I put down the empty tankard. "Hast thou here among these thy waiting ladies any two of discretion?"

"Ay," she said, "surely."

"Then bid them go out by the side entrance to any citizens whom thou canst bethink thee of as men loyal to thee, and pray them come armed, with all honest folk they can gather, to rescue thee from death. Nay, question not do as I say, and quickly. Kara here will let out the maids."

She turned, and selecting two of the crowd of damsels, repeated the words I had uttered giving them besides a list of the names of the men to whom each should run.

"Go swiftly and secretly, go for your very lives," I added.

In another moment they had left with Kara, whom I had told to rejoin us at the door leading from the great courtyard on to the stairway as soon as he had made fast behind the girls. Further too, Umslopogaas and I made our way, followed by the queen and her women. As we went we tore off mouthfuls of food, and between them I told her what I knew of the danger which encompassed her, and how we had found Kara, and how all the guards and men servants were gone, and she was alone with her women in that great place, and she told me, too, that a rumor had spread through the town that our army had been utterly destroyed, and that Sorais was marching in triumph on Milosis and how, in consequence thereof, all men had fallen away from her.

Though all this takes some time to tell, we had not been but six or seven minutes in the palace, and notwithstanding that the golden roof of the temple, being very lofty, was ablaze with the rays of the rising sun, it was not yet dawn, nor would be for another ten minutes. We were in the courtyard now, and here my wound pained me so that I had to take Nyleptha's arm, while Umslopogaas rolled along after us, eating as he went.

Now we were across it, and had reached the narrow doorway through the palace wall that opened on to the mighty stair.

I looked through and stood aghast as well I might. The door was gone, and so were the outer gates of bronze—entirely gone. They had been taken from their hinges, and, as we afterwards found, hurled from the stairway to the ground, two hundred feet beneath. There in front of us was the semicircular standing space, about twice the size of a large oval dining table, and the ten curved black marble steps leading on to the main stair—and that was all.

Billiard Tournament.

The opening of the billiard tournament at the Adelphi last evening attracted a large concourse of the admirers of the manipulators of the ivories. This evening at 8 o'clock they, being the winners, will pool issues.

Really! The Creme de la Creme.

A Clerical Appointment.

It is reported that Father Van Nevel, a much respected priest in this city, has been appointed to take charge of the Catholic Church at Nanaimo. Father Van Nevel's removal would be a great loss to the members of his congregation in this city, amongst whom he has labored for many years, and it is hoped that the report is without foundation.

Creme de la Creme Cigars; A. B. Gray & Co., Agents.

A Boom in Land Sales.

There is every indication of a most prosperous year in the business of the Interior Department, the land transactions being away up, although they have not yet attained the figure prophesied by Sir Charles Tupper. It is expected that the revenue from this source alone will exceed by $40,000 last year's receipts, which in turn showed a corresponding increase over those of 1885.

A Surprised Traveler.

Mr. Pierson, of the firm of Adolph Boissevain & Co., Amsterdam, who crossed the whole of the Canadian Pacific system, cabled his firm from this city that he was greatly surprised at the extent of the development throughout the Northwest and British Columbia since his previous visit of four years, and the confirmation of his long-standing conviction that there is a great future for the country and the railway which has opened it up to settlement.

Black and Tan Cigars.

A Gala Day.

In another column it will be observed that next Saturday is to be observed as a civic holiday by the good people of Wellington and Nanaimo, and that they will indulge in an excursion over the E. & N. Railway to Chemainus, where a grand gala day celebration will be held. The President of the Island Railway has generously chartered trains to be run to and from Chemainus in the afternoon. Passengers are to be conveyed at the low rate of $1 for the round trip. This is a low rate, and will have the effect of drawing thither a large crowd. In anticipation of such a contingency, Mr. Samuel Gray, of the Chemainus Hotel, has taken time by the forelock and has made ample preparation for supplying the creature comforts of every one with the best to be had in his line. Mr. Gray's reputation as a caterer is one of provincial fame, and on the forthcoming occasion he will fully sustain that reputation.

NANAIMO'S INDUSTRIES.

The Moss Backs and Growlers—Suggestions for the Enterprising.

Nanaimo is undoubtedly phantasmagorical in her ideas, tinged a little with second sight, able to see with limpidity when practically demonstrated by undeniable facts and achievements. Our capitalists could not see a short time ago that there was any necessity for gas works here, oh, no! Such things as that would not pay for years to come yet, there was no need for gas works; they would not pay expenses! But, presto! change. Some foreigners saw the feasibility of the thing and induced some of the citizens to embrace their scheme, and the result is the completion of gas works such as they are, at a very remunerative figure to the erectors undoubtedly. The light provided is highly satisfactory, and the fact that the works have paid all expenses, even during the summer months, and a small surplus has proven that it came none too soon. The next step towards civilization is the near approach to completion of the Nanaimo water works. The water will be in the town limits most probably about the time this is in print. We well remember the dishonest opposition brought to bear against the scheme a few short months ago. Nothing then was too bad to say against it. Every conceivable stigma was indulged in to retard "that sanitary necessity" being proceeded with. Ignorance of the subject fathered many an imaginary fault, and green spectacles gave the supply a slimy appearance, made it filthy and the possessor of a thousand faults; it was inadequate, and last but not least in the minds of the non-progressionists not their pet scheme. But lo! and behold, a few months has changed the vision of their dreams; a personal interest therein makes the crystal fluid, the ne plus ultra of waters, and they hold the goblet high, and sing "My drink is water bright from the crystal spring." Now they pass the midnight hours dreaming of sparkling, pure water, instead of frogs, lizards,—slimy scum and indescribly horrible looking leviathans of the lake. They tell you the city should have shown her progression by erecting those works herself, and securing to the the municipal revenue the profits of those two highly necessary works. Remember it is not yet too late. Let the councillors and citizens bestir themselves and raise a loan and purchase those works for the city; it will have the result of inaugurating a fund that will ere long assist materially in lowering the taxation of the city.

There is room in Nanaimo for a few industries yet. A boot and shoe factory could not fail but be remunerative amongst such a large mining community, and the heavy wear of our farming population and adjacent districts would help to assist considerably the demand. A wood turning manufactory could be run here on a small scale at first, manufacturing the multitudinous varieties of wooden ware whose name is legion. Ship building could undoubtedly be made as successful as in other parts of the province, as our shores are well adapted for the same, tidally and otherwise. Some of our local clothiers could profitably engage in ready made under clothing and overalls, just as well as pay other parts of the province for doing the same work, thereby finding employment for our young folks and assisting in building up our town. Crockeryware and brown pottery is quite an item in our provincial imports. Could not something be done herein. Clays suitable for many branches of these manufactures could be found on the island, and a considerable trade done therein. There are numerous other openings that could be pointed out, and those industries are what gives stability to a country. Vancouver has shown her keen perception of the benefits accruing to a town by the establishment of manufacturing industries by her vote of last week for smelting works. There may be objections to the system of bonuses, yet new towns, as a rule, do not lose much in the long run by purchasing such benefits. We need a little more speculation in our bones. Let us not lose sight of the dollars by holding too tenaciously to the single cent. BLUE JAY.

ON THE WING.

Movements of People We Know and have Read of.

Hon. Justice Walkem arrived from Kamloops last night.

Mrs. James Gray returned to-day from a visit to Seattle.

Mrs. Hugh Wright came over on the Starr to-day.

Revs. Carpenter and Reid arrived on the Sound steamer this afternoon.

Mr C E Perry, C E, of Earle & Co, is in the city.

Mrs A-J King has gone to Spence's Bridge on a visit to Mrs Aaron Johnson.

Mr. George Hess, M. P. P. for North Perth, and head of the great furniture manufacturing concern of Hess Bros., Listowel, will reach Victoria in a few days.

Mr. J. B. Jackson, manager of the Gold Bar Mining Co., is in the city, and will make his winter quarters here. He is accompanied by Mr. R. Murray.

Mr. J. B. Jackson, manager of the Gold Bar Mining Co., Siwash Creek, Yale, leaves for headquarters at Tacoma in the morning. He will be accompanied by Mr. T. Murray, who is also interested in the mine.

The Telephone.

New Westminster and Vancouver will soon be connected with Harrison's Hot Springs by telephone. The genial Brown will find the wire a great convenience, and his guests will fully appreciate the enterprise. Mr. J. Armstrong is shoving the work.

Found Dead.

The body of Fred Richardson, a deaf mute, was found in the water at the slip near the city wharf, Vancouver, on Tuesday morning. An inquest was held and a verdict of accidental death returned. The deceased had been suffering from typhoid-malarial fever, and had been refused admission to the hospital.

Obituary.

It is our sad duty to announce the death of Emily, the beloved wife of W. H. Brooks. The deceased lady has been suffering for some time from the ravages of that fell destroyer, consumption, and her death was not altogether unexpected. She leaves a family of four children to mourn her loss. The bereaved husband will have the sympathy of all in his affliction. The funeral will take place on Sunday.

The only result of the re-count in Ottawa County is to reduce Mr. Rochon's majority from 1,240 to 1,205, if a number of ballots not initialed by a deputy returning officer were admitted as good.

During September 147 patents were issued by the Agricultural Department, 79 less than in September of last year. The receipts in fees, however, were $6,248, an increase of $565 over September, 1886.

Detroit is just now enjoying a novel experience. On Wednesday of last week a new liquor tax and regulation law went into force, the effect of which is to close every one of the 1,200 saloons in the city at eleven o'clock at night on week days and entirely on Sunday. For the first time in the history of the city a Sunday has been spent without a single open saloon.

POLICE COURT.

(Before E. Johnson, Q. C., S. M.)

C. G. Sauer, charged with carrying a loaded pistol Mr. Theo. Davie appeared for the defense and, on behalf of the defendant, pleaded not guilty.

Officer Robb, sworn—I am a police officer; whilst on duty on Government street at 4.20 a. m. on Sunday morning last, near Broughton, I heard a noise of people talking loud and quarreling; turned up Broughton street and saw a man coming out on the sidewalk from a house occupied by a woman named Nellie Parnell; stood in a doorway, and when the man came along noticed a revolver in his hand; walked out behind him and the man walked faster; told him to stop; he did not answer and the witness walked up to him and took hold of him; asked defendant what quarrel he had been in and he answered nothing; told him to hand over the revolver, he said "I have no revolver, they have taken it from me." Witness was about to search him when he handed out the revolver; took defendant by the wrist and his hand and went to the hip pocket with witness' hand.

To the Superintendent—The pistol was loaded, with but one chamber empty. The defendant said he was the proprietor of the Bank Exchange, a saloon in this city.

S. Leach, sworn—Remember Saturday night last; don't know Mr. Sauer, and don't know anything about him; was in the Pritchard House at 4 a. m. Shortly after four was in a house on Broughton street; three women live there, and one is named Nell. Whilst coming out saw a man on the porch; he had something in his hand; cannot say whether it was a pistol; saw no officer there; when the man fell over the verandah, witness went home.

Officer Robb, recalled—Saw defendant at about 4.20 on Sunday morning; there was no appearance of daylight; to the best of witness' belief, the electric light was out; did not know Sauer, but he said he kept the Bank Exchange saloon; the defendant went to the saloon after the pistol was handed over. Am certain that defendant is the man.

Mr. Davie applied for a remand until Monday next, which was granted, and defendant was bound over in the sum of $750 to appear on Monday.

Edward Hodge was charged by Officer Robb with being a visitor to a house of ill-fame and a vagrant.

The defendant applied for a remand for five days.

The Superintendent objected to the remand, as one witness would probably be absent should a remand be granted.

Ions Hart was placed in the witness box, and before being sworn stated that she knew nothing about the Bible placed in her hand, but "guessed" it was a Bible.

The witness stated that she lived with May Williams on Trounce Alley; May Williams keeps a house of ill-fame; know defendant; have seen him at the house; he lived with the woman; saw him there last Tuesday when a stabbing affray took place between a strange man, defendant and May Williams. The woman is at present in Tacoma.

His Honor remanded the case until Monday morning.

David Blair, on remand, charged with leaving his horses unattended on Cormorant street, fined $5.

Ah Sam, a Chinaman, arrested by Officer Thomas and charged with supplying an Indian with liquor. Fined $50 or three months' imprisonment.

Wah, a Chinaman, arrested by Officer Walker and charged with supplying liquor to Indians. Charged dismissed.

Louis Fraser, an Indian, charged by Officer Thomas with being in possession of liquor. Fined $25 or one week.

Tom, an Indian, on remand for being in possession of an intoxicant. The charge was withdrawn.

Richard Hobson, charged with deserting from H. M. S. Triumph.

The defendant said he was not intending to desert; he changed his clothes because he wished to visit a place where he could not go in uniform. The defendant said his leave would expire at 8 p. m. to-day.

The Superintendant said a standing order was given to arrest any man without uniform; a telephone message was received from the ship this morning stating no one should be allowed at large without his uniform.

The ship's corporal informed His Honor that the man did not intend to desert, and as he was out on a lark last night he might be allowed to returned to the ship.

Defendant was discharged.

INDIAN VENGEANCE.

The Salmon River Indians Looking for Blood and Revenge.

The sequel of the Seabird massacre may possibly be enacted in a day or two near Seymour Narrows, when the Salmon River and Fort Simpson Indians meet on their return to the North. Information of a startling character was gleaned by our reporter to-day in conversation with one of the latter tribe, and the movements of the hostile factions gave an appearance of credibility to what might otherwise appear an unfounded rumor. It appears that a woman of the Salmon River tribe, to which Qua-Klos-Kum and Sicamous, the prisoners charged with the murder of the Seabird crew belong, is the wife of the Fort Simpson Indian who was a witness against the murderers. The Salmon River Indians believe that this witness procured his information from his wife, and they have sworn vengeance against him and all his tribe. A war of extermination has actually been threatened, and it is believed that twenty-five or thirty of the Salmon River tribe, who left this city on their return from the hop fields are now in ambush at Seymour Narrows awaiting the appearance of the Fort Simpsons. The latter, about equally as numerous, were apprised of what they might expect, and have prepared themselves with guns and ammunition to repel the attack. They have also enlisted several Hydalis, and have sent their women and children by steamer to Fort Simpson. They left to-day for the north, determined to fight if attacked, confident that they can cope with the treacherous and vindictive Salmon Indians. One or two Indians who were spoken to were very reticent about the matter, but the information as given is believed to be reliable. The police are aware that the lives of the witnesses in the Seabird case will not be worth a brass farthing if they return to the north again, and in vindicating the law and punishing the guilty it is almost absolutely certain that the risk is incurred of other and more horrible murders still.

BOUGHT A CRUISER.

Capt. Grant Selects a Fighting Schooner For a Sealer.

HALIFAX, Oct. 13.—The schooner Haulette, hitherto employed as a Canadian fishery cruiser, has been purchased by Captain Grant, of British Columbia, and will proceed immediately to the Pacific to engage in the Alaska fisheries. It will be remembered that the American fishery schooner Highland Light was captured by the Haulette. It is not improbable that the Haulette herself may become a prize of the American cruisers in Alaskan waters.
